

Please do not limit the bounds of XM Radio regarding weather and traffic info, as long as it does not broadcast indecent programming. I travel cross country often by car, and having instant access to weather has helped me avoid some major traffic problems and major storm fronts in areas and cities where local radio stations either weren't available, or only had sporadic coverage. XM Radio gave me instantaneous traffic and weather -- anywhere I was, and made my trips safer!

How in the world can you consider taking that ability away, just because local stations choose not to serve listeners so well.

Thanks for letting me voice my opinion.
